Flick Anticimex grows its market share in Regional VIC/NSW through the acquisition of Mildura & District Pest Management, Sunraysia Pest Control and Wally Green's Pest Control

Flick Anticimex continues its acquisition initiative with the acquisition of Mildura & District Pest Management (MADPM), Sunraysia Pest Control (SPC) and Wally Green's Pest Control (WGPC). This acquisition strengthens residential operations in the regions across the border of regional Victoria and New South Wales.

Located in Mildura, Leslie and Kaylene O'Connor established Mildura & District Pest Management, Sunraysia Pest Control and Wally Green's Pest Control in 1992, operating them as family-owned businesses. Tim O'Connor manages the businesses now with the support of his parents, Leslie and Kaylene. These businesses have grown to be a brand name with a strong reputation, being known as the largest independent pest control business within its area.

Leslie, Kaylene and Tim O'Connor, Director of MADPM, SPC and WGPC commented:

"We thank our team, suppliers, and customers for their support over the past 33 years. Our success is due to our dedicated team and commitment to exceptional customer service and professional pest control solutions. Joining Flick Anticimex will allow us to enhance our services with innovative and sustainable digital pest control solutions, while providing new opportunities for our employees within this growing global organization."

Shaun Coe, Regional General Manager – VIC/NSW Region, Flick Anticimex commented:

"I am excited about the merger with Mildura & District Pest Management, Sunraysia Pest Control and Wally Green's Pest Control, three well-managed businesses in Mildura, VIC. Tim's strong relationships with residential and commercial customers have driven their success along with the hard work and dedication established by Les and Kay. We look forward to collaborating with their team, whose commitment to excellence aligns with ours at Flick. Combining our experience with the latest technology will enhance their customers' experience."
